

BIO

I bring 10 years experience of internet technologies and management experience covering a broad arena, including project management, web design, usability, information architecture, user interface design, content management, client-side development (html, dhtml, javascript, vbscript, css), database design, and sever-side development (asp classic, cold fusion, jsp).

You'll find I am an exceptionally hard working, result driven individual who loves to be challenged. I enjoy working in a team environment where I tend to be a natural leader as well as being a dedicated hard working individual. I'm looking to be part of a long term solution in a quality company that values exceptionally hard working employees without exploiting them. I would like to exchange my diverse experience to help manage and meet your company's business goals in order to gain business and personal growth, making both parties successful endeavors.
